

How High Is Your Fed IQ?

Option 1: Use this activity as a formative assessment to see how much your students know about the Federal Reserve System before you introduce the content. To implement, ask students to find 12 different people who can give them an answer to each of the following questions. Each person they find will write the answer they know in the box and place their initials in the box under their answer. Give a small prize to the first five people who finish the activity with all correct answers and go over the correct information using the answer key.

Option 2: Assign this activity as an individual online scavenger hunt using classroom devices and other research materials. Give a small prize to the first five students who finish the activity with all correct answers and go over the correct information using the answer key.
