

Solving the talent problem will take the entire community to address the equity and poverty challenge. Every dotted line represents a handoff and a possible point of failure for our most vulnerable students.

